Traced by a Pioneer Resident

The Oregon country, extending from Russian held Alaska to Mexican held California, was but little known to white men before the American fur trading post was established in 1811 at Fort Astoria. This post fell to the English during our second war with England, but with peace, came joint occupation until 1845 when the boundary line between English and American territory was agreed upon.

During the 1840's there were great American immigration expeditions to the Columbia River port both by land and by sea. There was uncertainty as to what country would own the land and there was much church strife. The congregation at Fort George (Fort Astoria) among English subjects mostly of French mixed blood, Americans, and native Indians.

The English were mostly employees of the Hudson's Bay Company. Officers, traders and trappers. The Americans were missionaries, home-seekers, fur trappers and wanderers. In this unorganized community of mixed races, mixed nationalities and mixed cultures, two natural leaders, one English, one American, and both with Clatsop Indian wives, led the way to peace without fanfare. It may be that the deep, swift flowing Columbia and the wide Pacific with their fearful challenge to adventures may have engendered an outwardly-brotherly thoughtfulness among the mixed people — a brotherly love that was absent in other early Oregon mixed communities.

Captain Alexander Latty, a red headed, liquor loving Scotchman, sailed the Hudson's Bay Company's crack ship "Scarborough" into the Columbia and remained at Fort George (Fort Astoria) as the companies bar pilot. Indians, loyal to one who knew how and treated them justly, aided Latty in navigating the ships over the treacherous bar, sometimes when both Captain and helpers were tied to the masts.

The American leader, Solomon H. Smith, the first white settler of what later became Clatsop County, as a religious man. He had been educated as a doctor and had taught school at Fort Vancouver. With his princess wife Coliast, who dominated the Clatsop Indians, he maintained order and gained great material wealth. In their fortress built home near what is now Ocean View Cemetery, they received and promoted all newcomers. There was a reasonable peace without law other than what provisions leaked through from the distant American provisional government organized at Champoeig in 1843.

In 1850 Captain Latty put out to sea in his pilot ship while he was under the influence of liquor. He was drowned. His Indian wife, son William, and daughters Helen and Elizabeth moved to the cove north of Tillamook Head at the seashore.

William and Elizabeth secured U.S. government land grants. Helen was married to a French Canadian half-breed, A.J. Cloutre, and employee of the Hudson's Bay Company. Together they founded the summer resort industry at Seaside. The original building was probably constructed of logs, but later a good frame building named the Summer House stood close by the Necanicum on the William Latty donation land claim.

The guests were seekers for something better, farther on. Settlers for Tillamook County, which, by the provisional government partitions, was part of Clatsop County. The travelers went to Tillamook by the front or back trails that converged at Seaside. They brought out their chief product, cattle for beef, over these trails.

The honored guests of the Summer House came by way of the mail stage from the boat landing at Skipanon (in now Warrenton). The mail stage also brought groceries for the hotel, but much food was secured locally. Indian men with two-wheeled, springless, pony-drawn carts peddled elk, venison and salmon.

Salmon was sold only to customers who cut the fish lengthwise of the body. Indian women, with pine-root baskets on their backs, sold clams, crabs, sheep toes (barnacles) blackberries and cranberries. No doubt, many wild duck and goose dishes were served. Milk and cream were drawn from long horned cows showing California-Mexican strain.

The Cloutre family, father, mother, and five beautiful daughters were neighbors held in high esteem. Mrs. Cloutre was the first Seaside postmaster. Her post office desk may now be seen at the Portland Historical Museum. When S.K. Stanley's wife died, leaving four little children, Mrs. Cloutre took the baby (Nellie Stanley Laighton) and wanted to keep her. The eldest Cloutre daughter was among the first school teachers at Seaside. She married a prominent Portland merchant.

A.J. Cloutre, acting as guide for three prominent men, died with the three at the foot of Sugar Loaf Mountain. Mrs. Cloutre spent her last years with her daughter, Mrs. Benton Morrison, in Astoria.

All that remains at and near Seaside of the kindly British-American joint occupancy by the Latty-Cloutre family is the monument, in the pioneer cemetery. The Latty names on the U.S. donation land claim deeds and the name of a Necanicum River tributary, Cloutre Creek, also known as Klotchy Creek.

Seaside's first post office was established at Seaside House on July 23, 1873, then later in 1882 established at "Seaside."

The city was incorporated in 1899 with a population of 191.

Large sign on northwest upper corner of same building reads, "RANDOLPH'S 5 & 10 STORE." The little quonset-style "WEST'S DAIRY" building (behind first power pole on right), a dairy products outlet founded by Willis J. "Bill" West, sits about where the Pig 'n Pancake Restaurant is located today. Bill West (1869-mid 1950s) was third of the nine children of Josiah and Lamira

The Josiah West Family

A Bio-Sketch

by Jack M. Fosmark

Ed. Note: Josiah West, named among pioneers in the 40-year old Seaside Signal article on this page, is also mentioned in this week's Reflections. Although West rightfully never called himself a pioneer, it seems an appropriate time to discuss him. He was one of the prominent nineteenth century citizens who helped shape the land and influence the future.

Some of the living West family descendants are listed in the footnote which accompanies this article.

Josiah West (1831-1920) brought his wife and first three children to the Clatsop Plains in about 1872. (His actual date of arrival is indefinite, listed from 1867 to 1872.) West purchased the one-mile-square John & Harriet Jewett donation land claim of 1866. The 640-acre tract was bounded by the ocean on its west side and Cullaby Lake on its east.

By purchasing adjacent lands, West eventually expanded his holdings to more than 2,000 acres (one record says 2,500 acres, another 2,100), a major portion of the plains.

West, born March 21, 1831, at Castle Creek, Broome County, New York, was a fourth generation American of English stock. (His date of birth is variously given as March 11, 1831.) He relocated to Wisconsin in 1853, came west to Oregon in 1859 and settled first near Forest Grove, where he met his future wife who was attending old Pacific College. They were married Aug. 20, 1864, at Hillsboro.

Josiah had some experience as a school teacher before and after arriving in Oregon.

Lamira Budler Harrison, Josiah's wife, was born Feb. 7, 1844, in Jefferson County, Iowa. She came over the Oregon Trail with her parents in 1846 and settled in Washington County, near Hillsboro. Her father, John Harrison, brought milling burrs in his wagon for one of the first grist mills in Oregon.

The nine West children, in order of birth, were: Mary L. (1866), Lloyd G. (1867), Willis "Bill" J. (1869), Maud M. (1874), Daisy E. (1876), Rose O. (1878), Theodore Parker (1880), Paul H. (1882) and Violet C. (1887).

Married names of the five daughters were: Mary L. West Peterson, Maud M. West Prescott, Daisy E. West Fulkerson, Rose O. West Johnson, and Violet C. West Adams (Mrs. Harold West Adams-See in her second marriage).

Most of the West children are buried in Oceanview Cemetery, Warrenton, as are their parents.

Josiah West died on Aug. 10, 1920, at age 89. He remained actively engaged in farming until about two years before his death, when he sustained injuries by falling from a wagon when his team of horses ran away.

Josiah's wife Lamira preceded him in death, Nov. 18, 1916, at age 72.

Family legend has it that Mrs. West died as a result of complications after being struck by a bicycle. The Seaside Signal, July 27, 1916, mentions the accident in which she suffered a broken collar bone after being struck by a bicycle that was being ridden down hill by a small boy. Mrs. West, who was then 76 years old (sic) "allowed though she will recover from the sudden shock and accident, will be confined to her home for some time."

Living descendants John Adams and his half-brother Paul D. See tell us the surviving West children each inherited one hundred acres. "And there were still several hundred left over in the estate," John Adams commented.

Paul See holds some of the older West family records, including five deeds or donation land claim records associated with the West ranch in its heyday. It seems pertinent to here list those papers.

1. John Jewett, DLC #40, Dec. 14, 1866, 640 acres, signed (in proxy) by President Andrew Johnson.
2. Lewis & Nancy Judson, July 24, 1873, signed (in proxy) by Pres. U.S. Grant.
3. Philo Callender, May 5, 1873, (proxy) by Pres. Grant.
4. Marion Hawkins, Nov. 17, 1884, signed (in proxy) by Pres. Chester A. Arthur.
5. Marion Hawkins, June 26, 1896, signed (in proxy) by Pres. Grover Cleveland.

While discussing the old West mansion recently, John Adams recalled: "The mansion wasn't built until 1892. It was located on the road which goes due east from West Lake Market, where that road bends in a loop and goes around the lake. The mansion was about 200 feet south of that bend and about 100 feet from the lake (West Lake)." The site became known as West Station, one of several such stations on the railroad between Seaside and Astoria.

"The mansion's foundation blocks came from the wreck of the Cairnsmore, a sailing vessel," Adams added.

Paul See noted that the wreck of the Cairnsmore occurred Sept. 26, 1883. Clarence Sigurdson of Seaside had in recent years taken See to the site, which is a considerable distance from the present-day ocean shore, in a dense grove of pine not far west of the south end of Coffenburg Lake. Mr. See says the wreck, long buried under shifting sand, was photographed from an airplane in the 1930s when frivolous winds briefly uncovered it. But now it is again buried.

Among the Cairnsmore wreckage were a number of small hogsheads (wooden 30-gallon barrels) of Portland cement. Because the barrels were not watertight, the cement was soaked in seawater, and consequently set up hard. Josiah West, recognized their usefulness and carried the salvaged barrels home to use as foundation blocks for the new mansion.

"Some of them are still visible on the site, although the mansion was demolished in about mid-1942. It had run down and no one in those days wanted a big place like that. Today they would restore it as a historic monument. A green-colored house sits almost exactly on the site now," Adams concluded.

Mr. See added that the top part of several cement hogsheads are visible along the driveway to the green house.

Josiah West built the first cheese factory in the area and hired a professional to run it. Nearly 100 cows were milked by hand on his ranch; neighboring farms contributed to the cheesemaking effort.

Later, West sold his milk cows and raised beef. When he decided he wasn't any longer getting enough for his meat, he opened his own grocery store on Broadway in Seaside. This was located on the present-day site of the Holiday Place department store, in its eastern half.

West sold the grocery to John Selnes and Harry Wheatley in 1908. It was destroyed in the 1912 Seaside fire, but was quickly rebuilt by Selnes & Wheatley.

EARLY SETTLERS MADE EFFORT TO DRAIN AREA

The organization of a drainage district for the purpose of creating and maintaining drainage ditches and facilities in the area east of Gearhart and Seaside recalls the fact that the earliest settlers of the district took steps to the same end. This is the statement of Rose West Johnson, member of a pioneer family and unofficial historian for western Clatsop county.

As early as 1890 settlers on Clatsop Plains executed a memorandum agreement providing for the construction of a drainage ditch leading to mill creek, which empties into the Neawanna just north of the highway bridge at the northern boundary of Seaside. And there is evidence, but no official record, that an effort to drain the area had been made still earlier, and the agreement of 1890 had for its purpose, in addition to the creation of a drainage ditch, the repair and maintenance of one which already existed.

Furthermore, according to Mrs. Johnson there once existed on Mill creek a sawmill and a gristmill. These were among the earliest American industries in Oregon. When they were established is not known, but they existed in 1846 and undoubtedly were established several years previous to that time.

The document executed in 1890 serves as a roll call of all the pioneers of the western part of Clatsop county. The list of those who joined in the drainage program included Pete Mateson, S.K. Stanley, Sarah Lughton, Sarah Byrd, John Stanley, M.J. Kinney, C.W. Carnahan, E.A. Taylor, Mary E. Lowe, M.R. Butterfield, H. Ober, Lloyd G. West, Josiah West, the Clatsop Real Estate Co., and John Gearhart, the latter being named engineer for the project. Among them they pledged $2045 for the project, which included the construction of tide gates where Mill creek empties into the Neawanna. They agreed to accept levies for maintenance purposes and to pay their share of legal and other expense. The agreement provides for election of three supervisors at a vote to be taken each September.

Reflections

As to the earlier efforts at reclamation, there is no information except that which has been told to Mrs. Johnson. She says that she was told by Richard Eberman, Dr. Nellie Gearhart Byrd and others that Mill creek is not a natural waterway, but had been dug to drain the marshes and lakes lying east of the present highway route, and to provide for a mill site. It was on this creek that the sawmill and the gristmill were erected.

The sawmill was erected by John A. Packard, and evidently was operated successfully for many years, using logs cut in the vicinity and hauled to the creek by oxen. Mrs. Hiram Carnahan, who was born Mary Ellen Morrison and a pioneer of 1843, told Mrs. West that she lived at the mill site when she was married in 1846. Her father, R.W. Morrison, is believed to have operated the mill for a while. He floated the lumber up Neacoxie creek to his place on Clatsop Plains where Harold Tagg now resides. The chain of lakes and creeks at one time formed a through waterway from the Necanicum to the Columbia, and this waterway was undoubtedly used in the process of transporting the products of the mill.

Little is known of the history of the gristmill. Evidently it was not operated for long for the reason that wheat grown on Clatsop Plains was not suitable for flour. Bread baked from it was transparent and the settlers obtained flour whenever possible from Oregon City.

Before the erection of the gristmill the settlers ground their wheat in a huge mortar, with a pestle so large that the handle stuck up through the roof of the building in which it was located at the Methodist mission near Smith lake.

-Reflections-

The Old Sears Roebuck Motor Buggy that Dr. Lewis Drove

by Hal Berry
Sequim, Wa.

As I had mentioned in a previous article to "Reflections," that Dr. Lewis of Seaside drove a 1910 model Sears Motor Buggy; and an incident that was related to me by an old pioneer resident of Seaside, is the basis for the following true story.

The old Sears was a common sight on Seaside streets and the doctor drove it at a sedate ten to fifteen miles per hour. He housed it in the old Hannon-Smith garage which was on the ground floor of the now Masonic Hall building located on the corner of N. Holladay and Second Avenue East.

On almost any morning as we walked to school we were greeted with a cloud of blue smoke issuing from the garage door, as the old Sears was slowly backed out. A number of Seaside dogs were on hand to snap and bark at the vehicle's high wheels. The doctor drove this reliable vehicle up until late 1919 or early 1920; at which time he traded it in for a new black model 90 Overland Four touring car. Overlands were quite popular in those days.

In the early days the highway from Seaside to Astoria was mostly dirt and gravel with occasional runs of wooden plank in the boggy places. It seems that the doctor had received a call from a patient of his who lived up on the "plains" to the north. He was needed urgently. There being no forms of transportation either by road or by train at that hour of the night, the good doctor cranked up the old Sears lighted the two oil burning carriage type side lamps and headed out up on the highway.

As you approached West Lake, the highway did not go across that body of water as it does now, but made an abrupt turn to the right at the south end of the lake, proceeded east, then made a left turn up a steep hill. The road then followed north, up along the "plains." Up on a hill at the southeast end of the lake, resided a large home owned by one of the pioneer members of the West family. Mr. [Josiah] West was awakened by the continued barking of his dog shortly after midnight. He investigated and heard shouting from the lake and a lighted lantern was being swung back and forth from a spot considerably out into the lake. He dressed quickly and went out to investigate. It seems that Dr. Lewis had gone to sleep on his journey north and had failed to make the right turn at the lake edge and the old high-wheeled Sears chugged on out into the lake to a depth of where the water entered the carburetor and brought operations to a halt! Mr. West took his rowboat and brought the doctor to shore and put him up for the night. At daybreak they went down to the lake, rowed out with a long rope which was fastened to the rear axle of the Motor Buggy and with the motive power of a sturdy team of horses, towed the Sears back onto the highway. The light that the doctor had used for a signal was one of the oil powered side lamps from the old Sears. The vehicle was checked over, the water drained from the carburetor, the engine cranked up and the doctor departed on his way up on the "plains." We always hoped that his long waiting patient had survived.

The first West to come to Oregon was Josiah. With two friends (Wyeth and Groves?) he rode horseback from Wisconsin to the Willamette Valley in 1856. He acted as chain man in Eastern Oregon surveys; Put in crops for some valley farmers, and attended Tualatin Academy in 1861 -- to brush up he said. He taught country schools and in 1864 married Lamira Harrison who had crossed the plains by ox team with her parents in 1846 when she was two years old. She, too, had attended Tualatin College and taught school. Josiah and Lamira farmed for a time on Suavies Island, bought land of Lamira's miller father at Mountindale, and tried the Palouse country in Eastern Washington territory. Rattlesnakes, coyotes, dust, heat, cold and Indians did not please them. In 1872 they bought the Hohn and Harriet Jewett Donation Land Claim on Clatsop Plains. Here the family of three children grew to nine, the six hundred forty acres to two thousand acres well-stocked with many cattle, sheep, horses, and hogs and financed chiefly by a cheese factory.

* Josiah was not Eugene's father. He was a friend of Eugene's father and practiced at the same time.

JOSIAH WEST

Mr. Hager found deer and bears in Gearhart and vicinity at the time of his arrival, while wild ducks and geese were here in almost incredible numbers. He owns about three acres of land at Gearhart, which he has cleared from the jungle and transformed into a bower of beauty. He has set out various kinds of shrubs and trees and has a most beautiful flower garden containing one hundred and twenty-seven different varieties of dahlias, which he has raised from the seed and which are justly the envy of all visitors.

JOSIAH WEST

Josiah West had been a resident of Oregon for six decades when he passed away in Clatsop county on the 18th of November, 1920, at the venerable age of eighty-nine years. He was born at Castle Creek, Broome county, New York, March 11, 1831. His great-grandfather, Thomas West, fought as a British soldier in the Revolutionary war in 1776 but deserted to join the colonial army, with which he participated in the battle of Ticonderoga. Josiah West enjoyed the advantage of college training in the Empire state and taught school both before and after coming to Oregon. His experiences in this state are interestingly set forth in an interview with Fred Lockley in 1913. Mr. Lockley wrote: "Recently I visited Josiah West at his home near West Station, Clatsop county, Oregon. Mr. West had just come in from his cranberry bog. When he had pulled off his rubber boots and stretched his toes comfortably to the snapping fire in the fireplace he said: 'No, you have come to the wrong man. I am not one of the pioneers here. I have only been in Clatsop county forty-two years. From New York, where I was born, I went to Wisconsin and in 1859 I came out to Oregon. I settled near Forest Grove, where I taught school. My people were great abolitionists. So was I.' In fact, I went to an abolition college in the east and my early heroes were Theodore Parker, William Lloyd Garrison and men of that type. I married Lamira Harrison, whose father John Harrison, of Forest Grove, came to Oregon in 1846. He brought burs in his wagon across the plains for one of the first grist mills built in Oregon. There was considerable fever and ague in Washington county in those days so I decided to come down to the sea coast. You can know that I struck a healthy place when I tell you that I have raised nine children here and not one of them ever had a doctor until after he was of age. I bought a section of land when I first came here, for twenty-five hundred dollars, and I kept on buying as long as I found anyone willing to sell. I finally owned twenty-one hundred acres of land here and I don't believe you will find better land lying out of doors than this land. Clatsop county is one of the finest dairy countries in the world and with our salmon and timber we certainly have plenty of natural resources and raw materials to work on, for a long time to come. I cut my ranch up and gave a chunk to each of my children, so that I only have about a section left now. Some of the boys wanted to go elsewhere, so they have sold their places. A good deal of it was peat bog. We didn't use to know the value of it. Now they are planting it to cranberries and it is selling for three hundred dollars an acre. I had hundreds of acres of cranberry land but I gave it away, until I only have twelve acres of cranberry land left. * * * For a good many years I was in the dairy business but I am getting a little old for that now, so I have sort of dropped out of it. With the ocean at our front door some of these days we are going to see this country build up for a summer resort.'"

On the 29th of August, 1864, at Hillsboro, Oregon, Josiah West was united in marriage to Lamira Harrison, who was born in Jefferson county, Iowa, February 7, 1844, and passed away in Clatsop county, Oregon, November 18, 1916. She was but two years of age when in 1846 she was brought by her parents to Oregon, her father being among the first pioneer settlers of this state. She attended the old Pacific College at Forest Grove, in which her future husband was also a student. Josiah West was ever a stalwart champion of the cause of education, rendered efficient service on the school board for many years and gave all of his children the advantage of broad intellectual training. "Judge J. Q. A. Bowlby, attorney, came into the office of Judge T. S. Cornelius, sitting as probate judge, the other day to settle the estate of Josiah West, pioneer. As the two veterans bent above the papers and documents one of them remarked: 'Who would have thought sixty years and more ago, that we two would get together here in Astoria some day and settle up the affairs of our old schoolmaster?' These two judges, as well as Congressman Thomas Tongue, went to school to Josiah West about sixty-four years ago in the part of Washington county near what is now North Plains. Josiah West later came to Clatsop county and settled on Clatsop Plains, where he died about eight years ago. The two pupils ultimately followed the schoolmaster, Cornelius to farm and Bowlby to practice law. Now the two, both judges, are settling the affairs of their old schoolmaster."

Josiah and Lamiro (Harrison) West reared a family of nine children, as follows: Mrs. Mary Peterson, a resident of Hillsboro, Oregon; Lloyd G., living in Brownsville, this state; Willis J., of whom more extended mention is made below; Mrs. Maud Prescott, a resident of Alabama; Mrs. Daisy Fulkerson, who makes her home near Seaside, Oregon; Mrs. Rose Johnson, living on a dairy farm in the vicinity of Seaside; Theodore P., who is deceased; Paul H., who operates a dairy ranch near Seaside, Oregon; and Mrs. Violet C. See, who occupies a part of the old homestead on Clatsop Plains.

Willis J. West was born near Hillsboro, October 3, 1869, and supplemented his district school education by a course of study in Willamette University. Subsequently he assisted his father in the work of the home ranch for several years and then in 1900 went to Nome, Alaska, where he followed gold mining for two years. After returning to Oregon he engaged in the logging business on his own account until 1908, when he made his way to Marysville, California, where he purchased a farm, planted a fruit orchard and conducted a dairy farm near Live Oak in the Sacramento valley. On disposing of his property there he came back to Oregon in 1913 and bought a farm on the Necanicum river, a few miles south of Seaside. He cleared off most of the land that was still covered with brush and is now operating a large dairy there. Mr. West keeps about forty head of Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey cows and some pure bred registered sires. He also purchases about one thousand galloné of milk daily during the summer season, from neighboring farmers, and successfully conducts a large retail milk business at Seaside and Cannon Beach under the name of the West Dairy, utilizing five delivery trucks. He has an up-to-date milking machine. The modern and commodious barn which adorns his ranch was built in 1924.

Mr. West was married in 1909 to Lila P. Ross, a native of Michigan, and they are the parents of two children: Chester W., born in California in 1910 and now a high school student; and Violet, who was born in California in 1913 and is also attending high school. Fraternally Mr. West is affiliated with Seaside Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He has served as a member of the school board and at all times has exerted his efforts and influence in behalf of community welfare and advancement. His well spent life has won him the esteem and friendship of all with whom he has been associated.

A. F. BILES

A. F. Biles is president of one of the most important and successful enterprises in its line in the country the Central Door and Lumber Company, of Portland, which has, because of the high quality of its products, gained a world-wide reputation and stands in the front rank of the substantial industries of Portland. The Central Door and Lumber Company was established in 1906 and Mr. Biles has been at the head of the enterprise continuously since. The original products of the factory were wooden sash and doors and wall board, in addition to which the firm dealt in glass, paints and various building materials. The first plant was located at Thirteenth and Glisan streets, on the West side, where it occupied a building one hundred by one hundred feet. Substantial additions were made from time to time, but the steady growth of the business eventually demanded larger quarters and in 1917 the company acquired its present property at East Twenty-fourth and Holgate streets, where it has five acres of ground, on which it erected the present substantial mill buildings, comprising about three acres of floor space. The company is now engaged in the manufacture of doors, cut door stock and specialties, and has built up a large trade, a considerable part of which is export business, though its products are shipped to every section of the United States. The company sells through American exporting concerns and

AGED COUPLE DWELL IN HARMONY FOR FIFTY YEARS
(Portland Oregonian)

Surrounded by children and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah West, of Astoria, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Astoria, Oregon - September 12, 1914

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah West celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on August 27, at their residence on Clatsop Plains. At the dinner table there were twenty-six children and grandchildren. Besides the celebrants, those present were Mrs. Mary Peterson of Forest Grove; Willis Josiah, Paul H. West, and Mrs. Rosa Johnson of Seaside; Mrs. Daisy E. Fulkerson and Mrs. Violet Adams of Clatsop Plains, with their families. The absent children were Lloyd Garrison West, of Brownsville, Texas, and Mrs. A. W. Prescott of Washington, D. C.

All the sons and daughters of the aged couple are married and have families except Lloyd Garrison West. Mr. West is a believer in families and has made provision in his will for all of his grandchildren.

Mrs. West was born in Iowa seventy years ago. She crossed the plains with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison, in 1846. Mr. Harrison was the first American to build a flour mill west of the Rocky Mountains. The Hudson Bay Company preceded him in Oregon City. Mr. Harrison hauled the burrs for his mill across the plains in an ox wagon and built on Dairy Creek, six miles north of Hillsboro.

Mr. West was born 83 years ago in New York State. He is a pioneer of 1839. At sixteen years of age he moved to Wisconsin with his parents. Returning to New York at the age of twenty-one, he worked his way through a New York college by leasing a small tract of land raising truck. He tired of grubbing out roots of dead languages and logarithms, mixed with truck-raising, and obeyed Horace Greeley's command. After a short stop in Wisconsin he came to Oregon and finally to Clatsop where he purchased, during his first twenty years of residence, six farms giving a mortgage on each. He still owns six hundred forty acres, having divided the remainder among his children. He is a veritable son of the soil - was born on a farm, reared on a farm, works on a farm and loves broad acres and fine stock. He gave a farm to each of his children who wanted one.

Mr. West is proud of the fact that he reared nine children to the age of twenty-one years, without the aid of a physician.

Mr. and Mrs. West are still hale and hearty. He sits his horse like a bunch-grass cowboy and frequently rides ten miles to the tidelands, rounding up a band of steers. He takes a keen interest in the affairs of the world and does his share of work every day.

RIVERHEAD, L. I. Oct. 21.—(Special.)—Josiah West is going West to vote and will travel 6000 miles to vote for William H. Taft for President. He left Riverhead today for his home in Clatsop County, Oregon, and to reach there will necessitate a journey of about 6000 miles—and he is only 77 years old, at that.

Mr. West owns a ranch of 1400 acres in Oregon, with a mile frontage on the Pacific Ocean. He is as spry as a cricket, well read and a most interesting conversationalist. He has been here visiting his nephew, Judge Stackpole. With him was his youngest daughter, Miss Violet West, who is returning with him.

Having lived next to nature for the most part of his life, it is not strange that Mr. West should have selected botanical names for his girls. There are Pansy, Rose, Daisy, Heliotrope, Violet, and those people who met Miss Violet declare that she is as modest and sweet as her name suggests.

Survivor of Galena Wreck in 1906 ^{4/24/69} On Clatsop Beach Pays Visit to Astoria

By PRISCILLA AVERILL
For the Daily Astorian

When Capt. Karl E. Skovgaard of Svendborg, Denmark, visited the Astoria area this week, he did what most tourists do. He went to Clatsop Beach, where a British sailing vessel lies buried in the sands she ran aground on 63 years ago.

The Peter Iredale?

No. The Galena.

Both four-masted barks built in the same Scottish shipyard, the Galena and the Iredale were lost within a month of each other on this same fateful beach half a world away.

Most people now remember the wreck of the Iredale because her bones still jut out of the sand at Fort Stevens State Park — while her "sister" ship, long since dismantled to the sandline, lies forgotten under a dune in Surf Pines.

But Capt. Skovgaard has better reason to remember the Galena.

Aboard Bark

He was on her when she was wrecked November 13, 1906. An 18-year-old seaman, he made his way inland with other crew members to the home of Josiah West, who cared for the survivors while they awaited news of a ship to return them to England. Now 80 years old, and retired from a lifetime spent at sea, he returned this week (by plane, this time) to visit with the daughter of Josiah West, now Mrs. Harold See of Clatsop Plains, with whom he has exchanged letters for 63 years.

He still has the hearty bearing of a man who has spent years at sea, a handshake like a stevedore, a healthy tan setting off his white hair. Visiting at the Columbia River Maritime museum and at Clatsop College, where his benefactor's grandson, Paul See, is now an instructor in geology, he poured over maps and charts with See and — in English heavily laced with Danish accent — "told it like it was":

These were headlines describing the wreck of the Galena:

BRITISH SHIP GALENA HARD ASHORE AT CLATSOP

Dense Fog and Southwest Gale Responsible For the Great Misfortune

CAPTAIN HOWELL WAS IN CHARGE OF DECK

Vessel Was Out From Junin, Chili, And Bound For Portland —

In Ballast and Had Been Off the Columbia Bar for

Nine Days Trying to Enter This Port

Rockets were discharged in the early dawn but density of fog made them ineffectual — Crew of thirty all safely landed in ship's life-boat — Found shelter and relief at nearby farm

Describes Wreck

"The Columbia bar isn't easy to pass in today's ships, and under sail it was a lot harder. We had stood off for nine days until the weather was good enough, but we had to stay close enough to be ready to go over when the time came because a sailing ship can't go against the wind. At last, toward daybreak of the 10th day, we got too close and hit sand.

You know, if you sail a ship ashore, you can choose where you go; but if you drift ashore, you hit first ground and get knocked to pieces. It was thick fog, and no one saw the rockets we sent up. Because of tide, and pounding storm, it was the middle of the day before we all got ashore in the ship's lifeboat. There were 31 of us, soaked to the skin with salt water.

We made our way over the dunes and came to a lake (Neacoxie, now Sunset) where we found one small boat . . . two of us rowed the rest across one by one . . . all sailors can't row, you know.

East of the lake we came to a cabin, where we dried out and spent the night. During the night we saw eyes peering in at us, and some thought they were wolves. At dawn we saw they were sheep . . . we didn't know how close to civilization we were, so we took one and roasted it. Then we set out across the hill.

Daily Astorian

Capt. Skovgaard (left) and Paul See

We came to a big house, and they took us all in (the old West house, about 1½ blocks east of present day West Lake store). A few of the crew stayed in Astoria a number of years, but most of us departed Christmas Eve on a ship sent by the company to pick us up."

More Adventure

Though not as spectacular as his arrival, Seaman Skovgaard's departure from Astoria had its moments of adventure also, for these were the days of the shanghaiers.

As he put it: "If a captain wanted men then, he had to pay to get them. They do that in business now, but they don't call it 'shanghai.' . . .

"On Christmas Eve the two captains (i.e., of the wrecked Galena and her rescue ship) were very careful that we got on board . . . that someone else didn't take us away. There were about 20 other ships in the river that had been waiting for tide or weather six, seven, eight days. A little boat would make the rounds about every hour taking sailors in and out. The captains told us to wait until the boat came to get us at 8, and to make sure we stayed put, they gave us each a dollar for drinks. But when the boat came to take us, the captains weren't on board . . . they were both drunk . . . so they gave us each another dollar and told us to wait until 10. Finally, at 11 we got on the boat. All night there were watchmen on the ship to see they don't take men away."

He looks at Astoria today and compares it with the town he took away in his memory:

"Now the ground has all come down over the water. . . . There was one street then that went along the river and all the houses on it were on poles (Astor, the 'sailor' street') . . . you could row boats underneath the houses. . . . Every other one was a saloon or gambling house. . . . They all depended on the fishermen, who had much money . . . you'd see them with bagsful of 20-dollar goldpieces. . . . And there were dancing houses . . . you'd pay five cents a dance, and it would last only two minutes . . . and all those girls! . . . they each had two rooms. . . ."

Seaside
Sept 24, 1969

Strong winds were blowing when Capt. Karl E. Skovgaard of Svendborg, Denmark, at right, visited the Clatsop sand dunes about three miles north of Gearhart last Friday. But they were not as strong as those on November 13, 1906, when he came ashore there with the British bark Galena. Pointing to the location of the remains of the Galena is Paul See, Clatsop college science instructor, who found them.

Galena beaching:

Danish captain returns to 1906 shipwreck site

On November 13, 1906, Earl E. Skovgaard of Denmark was an 18-year-old able seaman on the British bark Galena when it came ashore on the Clatsop beach about three miles north of Gearhart during a storm.

Last Friday, a retired Danish naval and merchant fleet captain, he returned to Clatsop county to visit the site of the wreck, descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah West, who first gave the crew shelter, and Astoria, where he had stayed during hearings concerning the wreck. It was his first visit here since 1906.

The Galena, which was wrecked 20 days after the Peter Iredale, was coming in from Chile to Astoria to take on a load of grain for Europe. It was carrying just ballast and was riding high when the storm caught it.

Captain Skovgaard recalled that it was "just an ordinary storm" but because the ship was in ballast it couldn't turn against the wind and current. They went over the first wave and the captain saw he couldn't get the ship out. He decided to sail in straight because if the ship came in broadside, the waves would lift it and then drop it on the bottom, driving the four masts down through the hull. That would mean that the ship would stay out in deeper water. It was about 4 a. m.

The crew stayed on the Galena until the tide went out and then came ashore. All they could see was the ocean, the beach and the first sand dune. They walked over the dunes and finally came to Neacoxie lake. Not knowing whether it was a lake or a river, the captain sent one man south along the shore and another north.

One of them returned within a few minutes to report that he had found a small rowboat. Leaving one man to wait for the other scout, the rest went to the boat. Because it could carry only two men, only one stayed on the eastern shore each trip, the other one rowing back to pick up another man. There were 38 officers and men in the crew.

They stayed the whole day in a small hunting cabin on the eastern bank of the lake. That night they saw eyes in the dark and thought that the animals might be wolves, Skovgaard related. Because they heard no noise, some of the men thought it might be deer. When daylight came, they found out that it was sheep and they had roasted mutton.

Then, they walked eastward again and in about half a mile came to the West home. They stayed there a day or two and then were taken by train to Astoria. After the hearings, which took about a week, Skovgaard and several others returned to the West farm. Skovgaard remained there until December 24 when he went to Astoria to join another ship owned by the same company and resume his sea career. Some of the others remained in the county for years.

Of the 38 members of the crew, Skovgaard recalled, only five on the British ship were Englishmen. The others were of various Scandinavian and European nationalities and languages, except for the chief officer, who was a Nova Scotian. They got along in "work talk" all right because they used a kind of pidgin English but when it came to conversation only a few could talk together.

"Discipline!" skovgaard commented, "The captain was master and ruled the ship. There was no doubt about that. We had some troublemakers but they did their jobs."

Last Friday, Skovgaard visited in Seaside with Mrs. Violet West See, with whom he had corresponded since he had stayed at her parents' home, and Mrs. Daisy West Fulkerson. He was brought here by Carl Peterson of Hillsboro, a grandson of the Josiah Wests, who also had corresponded with him and who visited him in Denmark several years ago.

Paul See, science instructor at Clatsop community college, who had used a highly sensitive compass to locate remains of the Galena's steel hull, now buried under sand about 600 feet from the high tide line and about 60 feet from the lower Surf Pines road, took him to the site. He also took Skovgaard to the west shore of Neacoxie lake not far from the place where the rowboat had been found in 1906. With them were Mrs. Fulkerson, Peterson and Marion Fulkerson and Julian Prescott, other grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. West.

Captain Skovgaard was back here this week for a visit with the Sees and a trip to Astoria to see changes in that city since he had been there more than 62 years ago.

Skovgaard, whose home is in Svendborg, Denmark, was 14 when he first went to sea. He stayed in sailing until the outbreak of World War I in 1914, when he went into the Danish navy and used the time to become a naval officer. He went back to merchant ships until World War II when he went into the navy again as a supply officer.

He planned to go from here to Milwaukee, Wisc., to visit relatives and then to New York to fly back to Denmark. He plans to attend an annual meeting in Oslo, Norway, next June of an international organization of sailors who went around Cape Horn in sailing ships.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF JOSIAH WEST, DECEASED
JANUARY 1901.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF JOSIAH WEST, DECEASED) ESTATE #1677 OF) FINAL ACCOUNT
JOSIAH WEST, DECEASED)

Now come Rose C. Johnson, Executrix, and Paul J. West, Executor of the estate and last will and testament of Josiah West, Deceased, and submit this as their Final Account, and ask that it be so received and allowed, and the personal property of the estate be distributed as shall be proper.

They allege that all debts and claims, including the legacies of Sixteen Thousand Dollars ($16000) bequeathed to the grandchildren of deceased by him in his will have been paid, as per receipts on file.

The State Inheritance Tax has been fully paid and receipt therefor duly recorded.

That all lawful claims against the Estate, all taxes and other known liabilities of the estate have been fully satisfied and discharged, and the administration so far as it relates to the presentation and the allowance of claims has been completed.

The only personal property belonging to the estate now in the hands of the Executrix and Executor are the cash of One Thousand One Hundred Sixty Three Dollars and ninety four cents ($1163.94), as per statements "A", "B", and "D" and promissory notes of Three Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($3500), as per statement "C", hereto attached and made a part hereof.

That the debts and claims to be paid are as follows:

Attorney's fees	450.00
Executrix and Executor fees	1000.00
Dever's Office of Final Account.	7.00	$1457.00

which can all be paid from said balance of One Thousand One Hundred and Sixty Three Dollars and ninety four cents ($1163.94), except the sum of One Hundred and Forty Three Dollars and six cents, ($143.06), and there will be sufficient funds received from mortgage before the date set for hearing this Final Account to pay said sum, and balance this account.

It is asked that proper provision be directed by the Court for the collection and disposition of said notes.

It is further alleged that the residue of the estate of said Josiah West, Deceased, is directed by his said will to be distributed among his sons and daughters, equally; namely, Earl Peterson, Loyd G. West, Willis J. West, and W. Prescott, Daisy E. Fullerton, Rose G. Johnson, Paul H. West, and Violet W. Adams, who are the residuary legatees and devisees, and are all over the age of 21 years, and are entitled to the residue and remainder of the real and personal property of said Deceased, as provided by said will. Violet W. Adams is now Violet W. Adams Sec.

It is further alleged that the sum of Thirty Five Thousand Three Hundred and Eighty Two Dollars and Thirty One cents ($35,382.31) passed through the hands of these executors as shown in statement "B", and elsewhere. That since the time cattle and sheep to be cared for, there were many acres of land to care for, cranberries to be harvested and sold, fences to be looked after, unfinished accounts of sale signed by deceased and which were disputed, and required much time and skill to settle advantageously. It was necessary also to sell lands to get the money to pay the bequests to the grandchildren.

Four years have been required to make advantageous sales, and these executors ask that they be allowed the sum of One Hundred Dollars ($1000) for their services. Their commission on Thirty Five Thousand Three Hundred and Eighty Two Dollars and Thirty One cents ($35,382.31) provided by statute is Eight Hundred and Thirty Seven Dollars and sixty five cents ($837.35), and they ask the Court to allow them the further sum of One Hundred and Sixty Two Dollars and Thirty Five Cents ($162.35) for extra services and expenses.

Petitioners represent that it was necessary to employ legal services to assist them in administering the estate, making sales of property, ^{etc.} and they employed J. Q. A. Bowlby, Attorney at Law, for this purpose. That the usual fee to be charged for such services would be the same as the law allows for Executor's fees, to-wit: Eight Hundred and Thirty Seven Dollars and sixty five cents ($837.65), but said J. Q. A. Bowlby having been a lifelong friend of deceased and his legal adviser during his lifetime, agreed to accept Five Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($500) for such services.

All the personal property set forth in the Inventory and Appraisement, and which came into the hands of the Executors has been disposed of and accounted for as appears from the accounts on file herein, except the mortgages shown on Statement "C".

All the real property set forth in the Inventory and Appraisement of said Estate is in the hands of the Executors, except those tracts sold and reported to the Court as appears from the reports of the Executors on file herein, and such balance of real property is unappropriated and subject to distribution as by said will provided.

WHEREFORE Petitioners pray for an order directing the Executrix and Executor to pay the fees of said Executrix and Executor as above prayed for, balance of Attorney's fees, and the cost of publishing Notice of Final Account, and for an order setting time for hearing, allowing and approving this Final Account, and upon such allowance and approval, directing the distribution of the personal property remaining in their hands, and discharging said Executrix and Executor from their trust and closing said estate.

And Petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Pioneer Seaside Resident Passes

Lloyd G. West, 72, native born Oregonian and a member of the pioneer Josiah West family, early residents of the Seaside district, died early yesterday afternoon at a local hospital following an extended illness with heart trouble. For the past 35 years he had resided at Brownsville, Oregon, where he was a raiser of thoroughbred sheep. He returned to Astoria about three weeks for hospital care where he could be near other members of his family.

He was born in Hillsboro on August 20, 1867, the son of Josiah and Lamira West, pioneers who crossed the plains in a covered wagon. He came as a young man to Seaside with his parents where he opened the first meat market in that city.

He is survived by two brothers, Willie J. West and Paul H. West, both of Seaside; four sisters, Mrs. Maude W. Prescott, Theodore, Alabama, Mrs. Daisy Fuikerson and Mrs. Rose O. Johnson, both of Seaside, and Mrs. Violet W. See, Warrenton.

Funeral services will be held at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the chapel at Ocean View cemetery with Rev. Ira Aldrich, pastor of the Seaside Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in the family plot at Ocean View cemetery. Ginn's Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Ex-Astorian Dies In N. York

Word was received yesterday by Mrs. Jack Tuomi, 779 Glasgow avenue, of the death of her brother, Nels Tuomi, in New York City Wednesday.

Tuomi came to Astoria from Finland in 1924 after having been wounded in the Finnish civil war. He spent two years here, making two trips to Alaska as fish buyer during that time. He then went to San Francisco, where he was employed as butler-chauffeur. He was admirably suited for this work, because, among other things, a linguist ance of quality and wholesale working conditions for employees.

As a part of the observance of occasion, the Central Labor council, through Eli M. Conkey and I. Pierre, president and secretary, asking that all legal merchants participate by displaying and featuring products which bear the label of organized labor. These two other officials of the council will go to Portland Friday to attend banquet which is a part of the statewide observance.

The local officials point out that not only does the union label assure the public of production and manufacture under high standards of living, but protects consumers against inferior foreign products made with cheap labor.

The governor in his proclamation states that "goods which are product of exploited labor or child energies which ought to be devoted to study and recreation dear, no matter what the selling price. The union label may be regarded as a sign of merit that conditions do not exist in places where the goods which carry it are produced."

Bus Rites Set Friday

One of the four Astoria Regency princesses, to be chosen by lot, christen the beautiful new "City of Astoria" bus, to be put into service by the Oregon Stages, at ceremony in front of the company's depot on the north side of the Astoria lagoon Friday afternoon at 5:15. Miss Jean Pauling will be unable to attend the dedication.

Coming to take part in the affair is the Seaside high school band. Some 20 officials of the company and other transportation agencies will be present. Earlier in the day two other busses, "City of Cannon Beach" and "City of Seaside" will be christened at their respective cities. These two busses will be shown here also.

Seaside All Set

SEASIDE. (Special) Seaside is ready to welcome the new Oregon Stages Flexible Clipper "City of Seaside" when it arrives Friday at 5:15. Miss Lois Swimm, "Miss Seaside Broom," will have a bottle of orange juice to christen the bus. G. W. ... and auditor will act

A. Prescott Services Set Saturday

Services for Anson Ward Prescott, Box 623-F, Warrenton, will be held Saturday at 10:30 a. m. in the chapel at Oceanview cemetery, with the Seaside Masonic lodge officiating. Burial will follow in the family plot in Oceanview.

Active casket bearers will be Wallace "Bud" Johnson, Carl Peterson, Chester West, Robert Sauer, Roy Ear and William Bailey.

Honorary bearers will be John Dellinger, Robert Reid, Earl Pickering, Frank Wooden, Clifford Hitchman, David Waterhouse, Fred Ober, George Adams, E. T. Stafford and Ben Waterhouse.

Prescott, who died Wednesday in the Seaside hospital, was born at Clearwater, Minn., March 5, 1873, the son of Harrison Whittier and Sarah L. Prescott.

He was graduated from Willamette university in 1893. He taught school at Clatsop, Ore., where he married Maud M. West of Clatsop on November 14, 1896.

While teaching at Clatsop, he studied for his law examination and received his degree in law from Willamette College of Law in 1896.

He practiced law in Salem a few years, then became Salem correspondent for the Oregonian until he became secretary to Senator Jonathon Bourne.

In Washington, D. C., he was clerk of the U. S. senate committees; secretary of the joint commission federal aid to good roads; secretary of the National Progressive Republican league and secretary of the Republican Publicity association.

Prescott went to Mobile, Ala., in 1924, where for 20 years he superintended Sen. Jonathon Bourne's 2000 acre orange and pecan-nut plantation until the orange trees were killed by freezing. He had retired and has since lived north of Gearhart, where he served on the Clatsop school board where 55 years before he had taught school.

He was a member of the Methodist church; was a 32nd degree Mason and Shriner, and was a member of Pacific grange.

Survivors include his wife, Maud, Warrenton; a son, Major Julian Prescott, Washington, D. C., and a brother, Eugene Prescott, Salem, Ore.

Arrangements are under the direction of the Luce funeral home.

Julian Prescott Home From Overseas Duty

Home from overseas duty and separated from the service after twelve years is Julian Prescott, formerly Lt. Colonel assigned to the Headquarters of the Eighth Army. He returned to Seaside Saturday, after spending several months in Korea and a year previous to that stationed in Japan.

Foremost members of the welcoming committee, naturally, were Mrs. Prescott and the three children, Marion, Paul and Linda and Mr. Prescott's mother, Mrs. Maude Prescott, a resident of Clatsop Plains.

Asked how things were in Korea, Prescott said "cold" and noted that he slept in an arctic sleeping bag with two additional blankets just a month ago.

"The two things that I notice most about being home are the warmth and fresh air—I mean, the absence of foul odors", Prescott said.

He plans a short vacation devoted to loafing before looking around for employment.

Julian P. Prescott

Julian P. Prescott of Seaside, 84, a former reporter for the Seaside Signal, died Feb. 29 in Seaside.

Mr. Prescott was born Nov. 2, 1905 in Salem, the son of Anson and Maude (West) Prescott. He attended school in Washington, D.C. and received his higher education at Oregon Agricultural College (now Oregon State University) and the University of Oregon, where he received his bachelor of arts in Political Science.

He married Jean Hogg of Scarsdale, N.Y. Aug. 10, 1936. Mrs. Prescott passed away in February of 1973. He married Agnes Dellinger of Clatsop County in 1975. She survives him.

Mr. Prescott served as an intelligence officer in the United States Army during World War II, stationed in the European Theater. Following duty in occupied Germany after the Allied victory, he served as Intelligence Officer at the Pentagon. From there he was stationed in Sapporo, Japan and then Korea. He was discharged after 24 years of service at the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Mr. Prescott was employed as a news reporter with the Eugene Register Guard, Salem Statesman, and Oregonian during his college years. Preceding his military career he worked for newspapers in Quincy and Waltham, Mass.

After the end of the Korean conflict he returned to the newspaper industry in McMinnville with the Daily News Register and then with Scripps Publications at the Nampa, Idaho Idaho Free Press as city editor, and the Caldwell, Idaho New Tribune.

In 1966 Mr. Prescott returned to work for the Seaside Signal until his retirement in 1970.

He was a member of the Seaside Christian Church and the Evergreen Masonic Lodge.

Survivors include his wife Agnes; daughters Linda Prescott of Portland and Marion Prescott of Everett, Wash.; son J. Paul Prescott of Honolulu, Hawaii; stepdaughters Nancy Sowin of Monte Semo, Calif. and Sue Ausland of Grants Pass; eight grandchildren; four step-grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

Services were held in Hughes-Ransom Chapel in Seaside Feb. 24, with Pastor Paul Hermansen of Our Savior's Lutheran officiating.

Donations may be made to Providence Seaside Hospital.

Maud Prescott Taken by death

Maud West Prescott, believed to be Clatsop county's oldest living native at the time of her death, died February 3 in the Seaside Convalescent Center.

Services will be held Saturday at 11 a. m. from the Chapel in the Sunset mortuary. The Rev. Clarence Baerveldt, Clatsop Plains Presbyterian church, will officiate. Private committal will be in Ocean View cemetery.

Mrs. Prescott, the daughter of Josiah and Lamira Harrison West, Clatsop county pioneers, was born August 6, 1873, at West Lake. She attended Clatsop school and graduated from Oregon Normal school. She taught school at Olney before her marriage to Anson W. Prescott on November 14, 1896. They lived in Salem until 1903, in Washington, D. C. from 1909 to 1925; near Theodore, Ala. from 1925 to 1944, when they returned to Clatsop Plains. Prescott died in 1951. Mrs. Prescott continued to live on the Plains until she suffered a stroke in February, 1962. Since that time she has been a resident of Seaside hospital and more recently of the Convalescent Center.

Mrs. Prescott was a member of the Order of Eastern Star, Chadwick chapter, in Salem, for more than 50 years and a past regent of the Daughters of American Revolution chapter in Washington, D. C.

Survivors are a son, Julian P. Prescott; two sisters, Violet West See and Daisy West Fulkerson, Seaside; three grandchildren, two of whom live in Seattle and one in Seaside, and five great-grandchildren. A daughter died in infancy.

Mrs. Prescott's mother came to Oregon in 1846 by wagon train and lived in the North Plains area before marrying West. He was a late comer, not arriving until 1852, via the trail. They came to Clatsop county about 1870.

Obituaries

Joseph Sutter Daisy Fulkerson

A well-known Knappa area resident, Joseph Gable Sutter, 64, of Rt. 4, Box 557, Astoria, died early Friday morning in a Portland hospital, where he had been a patient for the past two weeks.

Sutter was born March 31, 1906, in McKinleyville, Calif., where he received his education.

He had worked as a logger and owned a dairy ranch in California prior to coming to Brownsmead in 1963, where he purchased a cattle ranch. He and his wife, Dorothy, also owned and operated the Big Creek Tavern.

He was married Dec. 21, 1963, in Kelso, Wash. to the former Dorothy Ober, who survives him and resides at the family home at Rt. 4, Box 557.

Sutter served in the U. S. Army from 1929 to 1932. He was a member of the Brownsmead Grange.

Besides his wife, Dorothy, Sutter is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Eldon (Sharon) Schalk, Seaside, and Mrs. Arvo Aho, Svensen; two sons, Thomas Vosika, Gearhart, and William Cooke of Arcadia, Calif.; a brother, Peter Sutter, Brownsmead; three sisters, Tillie Smither, Blue Lake, Calif., Louisia Parton, Arcadia, and Rosa Sutter of Ukiah, Calif.; 12 grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Service is being planned for Tuesday, at 1 p.m. and is being announced by the Luce-Layton Funeral Home.

George Wright

George E. Wright, 76, South Bend, Wash., died Saturday in an Aberdeen Wash., hospital.

Born Feb. 12, 1894 in Astoria, he received his public education at Long Beach, Wash. He married Senie Lampi Sept. 11, 1919 and they lived in the Ilwaco, Wash., area for 30 years, where

One of Clatsop County's oldest residents, Daisy West Fulkerson, 94, 840 first Avenue, Seaside, died Thursday evening in an Astoria hospital, where she had been a patient for the past three months.

Mrs. Fulkerson was born April 8, 1876, in Clatsop Plains, the daughter of the late Josiah and Lamira Harrison West, early Clatsop Plains pioneers. She attended the Clatsop School on Delmoor Road, and graduated from Oregon Normal School at Monmouth in 1894. She taught school in Nehalem Valley for several years before her marriage.

She was married March 28, 1900, at Astoria, to the late Pearl Fulkerson, who preceded her in death in 1953. After her marriage, they moved to Portland, where Fulkerson worked for the OWRN Railroad, then moved to Powell Butte, Ore., where they operated one of the first ranches under the irrigation system from 1907 to 1913, at which time they moved on Hamlet Route at Peterson's Point, where they operated a dairy farm from 1915 to 1939. After retiring, they moved into the city of Seaside, where Mrs. Fulkerson had since resided.

She was a member of the Spanish-American Veteran's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Fulkerson is survived by two sons, Gilbert H. Fulkerson of Crescent City, Calif., and Thomas W. Fulkerson of Oroville, Calif.; two daughters, Marion M. Fulkerson of Seaside, and Mrs. M. L. (Carmen) Campbell of Portland; four grandchildren; six great-grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren.

Service is being planned for Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. and is being announced by the Chapel in the Sunset Mortuary, Seaside.

our politics and the others are listed as follows: Republicans, 51; Democrats, 2; Prohibitionist, 1; Non-partisan, 4.

T. D. Laurin, the druggist, has a very handsome pony for sale at a cheap price and for immediate delivery. Some time ago he presented it to his young son, Eddie, and it has been the source of much enjoyment to the boy until yesterday. Eddie had learned to be a trick rider and yesterday while turning a corner at full speed the pony slipped and in falling threw him hard. He received a severe scalp wound and badly shaken up but not seriously injured. For this reason the pony is for sale.

There is a considerable run of silver-sided in the river at the present time and it extends from Baker's bay to above Cathlamet and probably further. The run is not a record breaker by any means but larger than has been known for a number of years. The price being paid is 2 cents per pound and the demand is greater than the supply as the cold storage people are shipping them east, sharp frozen, as well as the canneries cutting them up. This run should be a hopeful sign for a good run of these fish in the coast streams.

Albert Utzinger, the Seaside caterer, will be in charge of the banquet that is to be given tomorrow evening at Seaside in honor of the meeting of the Dramatic Order of Khorasan, an auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias lodge which begins its annual session in that city today. Delegates from all over the state will be in attendance.

An order for default and judgment was taken in the circuit court this morning in the case of the Pacific Iron Works vs the Seaside Spruce Lumber Co. and also in the case of Marshall Wells Hardware Company vs the Seaside Spruce Lumber Co. Judge McBride will adjourn the session of the court this evening and will go to St. Helens, where he will open a regular term tomorrow. He will return in give the greatest thanks to Captain Bailey who acted as chaperon of the party and secured for them the most advantageous point to witness the spectacle, which was on the tug Tyee that had the honor of placing the first line aboard the vessel after she floated. The Tyee was in command of Captain Bailey and he had on board an elaborate lunch for his guests. The affair naturally could not have progressed without some joke and this one was on Madison who was still at the table eating bread and jam when the launching took place and he failed to witness it. This is really explained by the vessel leaving the ways a few minutes earlier than announced and Madison was eating with one hand and had his watch in the other.

Theodore Parker West, son of Josiah West of Clatsop, died about 8 o'clock last evening from injuries received in an accident on last Friday. He was employed as engineer on the Carnahan dredger, which is being used in digging the Cullaby lake canal. At the time of the accident a stump was being pulled, when the block broke and flying back struck Mr. West in the stomach. The blow caused an internal hemorrhage that resulted in the young man's death. Although suffering great pain he was conscious until near the end. The deceased was 24 years of age and was born on Clatsop plains, where he spent all his life. He leaves besides his parents, three brothers, all of whom live in this county, and five sisters who reside in the Willamette valley. The funeral will be held from the family residence at 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and the interment will be in the Pioneers cemetery on Clatsop plains.

Victor Lindstrom, a deck hand on the dredge Chinook, was killed last evening by the evening train from Astoria for Fort Stevens as it was backing up on the Fort Stevens branch. It was about half past six o'clock and it was almost dark when brakeman

Glover was detached from a short time ago and train outter Bear at San Francisco.

Violet See Dies Today

A well known pioneer resident of the Clatsop Plains area, Violet See, 83, of Rt. 1, Seaside, died early Monday morning in a Seaside convalescent home.

Mrs. See was born March 2,
1887, to Josiah and Lamira West of Seaside. Her formal education was received at Clatsop Plains and the Willamette University. She had worked as a practical nurse at the Good Samaritan Hospital for two years. Then from 1920 to 1922 she had operated a retail shop for the West Dairy in Seaside.

Mrs. See was married Oct.
19, 1922 in Astoria to Harold
See. Afterwards they moved to Saskatchewan, Canada where they operated a wheat ranch.
About 1925 they moved back to Clatsop Plains to work until illness caused her retirement.

She is survived by a sister,
Daisy West Fulkerson of Seaside; two sons, Paul See of Rt.
1, Seaside and John Adams of Scotia, New York; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral service will be Monday at 1:30 p.m. and will be announced by the Chapel in the Sunset Mortuary, Seaside.

May Linzy Dies Thursday

May Linzy, 80, Knappa area resident since 1937, died in a local hospital at 5:50 p.m.
Thursday. Due to an extended illness she had been hospitalized several times in the past few years and had spent twelve days in the hospital during her last illness.

Dies Thursday

Olga H. Anderson, 47, resident of Astoria, died in a local hospital early Thursday afternoon where she had been a patient for the past nine days.

Mrs. Anderson was born Jan.
10, 1923, in Rhinelander, Wis., the daughter of August and Amelia Arndt Lempke. At the age of eight years she moved west with her parents and settled on a farm in the Green Mountain area near Olney. She received her primary education at the Olney grade school, then attended and graduated from Astoria High in 1941. Following her schooling she worked for a short while at Union Fish Co. and Van Camp cannery.

She was married July 31, 1959
to Mervin Anderson at South Bend, Wash.

Survivors besides Anderson are four daughters, Mrs. Norman (Judy) Shatto, Colfax,
Wash.; Mrs. Joseph (Joan) Russ
Jr., Eugene; Mrs. Noel (Janice)
Moore Jr., Birmingham, Ala.;
and June Kaarle, Astoria. Her mother, Mrs. Amelia Lempke; three brothers, Leo Lempke, Eugene; Gustof Lempke, and Rudolph Lempke both of Astoria.
Three sisters, Mrs. William (Freda) McCoy, Scappoose, Mrs.
Delbert (Elsie) Myers, Anchorage, Alaska and Mrs. Nicholas (Clara) Stefanowicz, Astoria and one grandson.

Information regarding service which is being planned for Monday at 11 a.m. are being announced by the Hughes-Ransom Mortuary.
